

Section 8– Relazioni Internazionali

Chairs: Carla Monteleone, Vittorio Emanuele Parsi

Round table

Panel 8.16 The end of the liberal order

The order set up by the United States with the support of its allies after World War II and expanded after the end of the Cold War is facing existential challenges. The roundtable will debate how these challenges can force an exit from the order and whether the existing institutional structure is capable of containing them. Given the increasing polarization and competition among great powers, it will also debate what features of the liberal order are likely to persist or be substituted in the coming one.

Chairs: Carla Monteleone, Vittorio Emanuele Parsi